Size 12.8*9.8*1.8" (LxWxH)

Note: this Seed Sprouter Tray might be misleading, it looks deep sided, but the price is a lot cheaper than the one just below which I bought last year. The short sided ones, two below, are cheaper, but I don't like them as well. I just put in an order for this one, so I will let you know what I find out.

Can I use these for Microgreens? If not, why?

Thank you for your interest in Pesticide Free - Prairie Melody™ Black Oil Sunflower Birdseed. Our product is labeled "Not for Human Consumption" because we do not perform a certified bacterial kill step which would eliminate disease causing bacteria as required by the FDA.

By Prairie Melody Birdseed SELLER on June 17, 2019

The bag states "not for human consumption" and the claim "pesticide free" is a broad one. Sunflowers remove toxins from the soil in "land that is transitioning to organic". I would clarify with the company; what does "pesticide free" actually mean?

By Bonnie S on June 18, 2019

The seeds are smaller than what I get from other places. That said, the germination rate is fantastic and the yeild is high.

By Itsadryheat on March 19, 2020

There is a big difference in price between non-pesticide bird seed and organic seed. I have used bird feed successfully all winter, up until just recently. A new bag of the same brand has proved to be a disaster, so I have gone back to the seeds I bought from Johnny's Selected Seeds. When I run out of seeds I might try the no-pesticide seeds at the left.
